Passage 1

The modern youth are more intelligent and hardworking than the previous generations. They have more facilities for education and they do utilise them. But they lack proper direction. In the absence of proper guidance, young boys and girls go on increasing their academic qualifications.

Some of them secure high percentage of marks whereas most of them get average or below average marks. Since the number of aspirants for a job is much higher than the number of vacancies, most of the young boys and girls do not get any employment. This causes the problem of the educated unemployment and depression among the youth.

The problem of the educated unemployed can be solved partly through proper guidance and counseling and partly through grooming. Young students often disregard the advice of their parents and go on imitating their peers. This sets in the chain of the blind leading the blind. Uneducated or semi-educated parents think of academic qualification as achievement. Young students must seek the advice of the school counselors and select a course of study that suits their aptitude.

Instead of pursuit of academic excellence, they must go in for proficiency in technical field of information including technology, computers, biotechnology, biochemistry and consumer services. In this way, their youthful energy will get directed in the proper channel and they may get fruitful employment or become competent enough to launch their own project and give employment to others.

- (a) growing modernisation
(b) educated unemployment

- (a) Educated Unemployed
(b) Education- a Revolution
(c) Fight for Power
(d) Professionalism

Passage 2

"Why did you keep away yesterday?" asked the head master, looking up. Swaminathan's first impulse was to protest that he had never been absent. But the attendance register was there. "No-No-I was stoned. I tried to come, but they took away my cap and burnt it. Many strong men held me down when I tried to come ... When a great man is sent to gaol ... I am surprised to see you a slave of the Englishmen ... Didn't they cut off - Dacca Muslin - Slaves of Slaves"

These were some of the disjointed explanations which streamed into his head and which, even at that moment, he was discreet enough not to express. He wanted to mention a headache, but he found to his distress that others beside him had one.

The head master shouted, "Won't you open your mouth?" He brought the cane sharply down on Swaminathan's right shoulder. Swaminathan kept staring at the head master with tearful eyes, massaging with his left hand the spot, where the cane was laid. "I will kill you if you keep on staring without answering my question," cried the head master.

"I-I- couldn't come," stammered Swaminathan.

"Is that so? Asked the head master and turning to a boy and said, "Bring the peon".

Swaminathan thought, "What! Is he going to ask the peon to thrash me? If he does any such thing, I will bite everybody dead." The peon came. The head master said to him, "Now say what you know about this rascal on the desk."

The peon eyed Swaminathan with a sinister look, grunted and demanded, "Didn't I see you break the panes?"

"Of the ventilators in my room?" added the head master with zest.

Here, there was no chance of escape. Swaminathan kept staring foolishly till he received another whack on the back. The head master demanded what the young brigand had to say about it. The brigand had nothing to say. It was a fact that he had broken the panes. They had seen it. There was nothing more to it.

He had unconsciously become defiant and did not care to deny the charge. When another whack came on his back, he ejaculated, "Don't beat me, Sir. It pains." This was an invitation to the head master to bring down the cane four times again.

He said, "Keep standing here, on this desk, staring like an idiot, till I announce your dismissal."
